

Ligularia dentata 'Othello'

Ragwort Othello

DESCRIPTION

Huge orange flowers bloom over purple-bronze foliage from July to September.

Othello is a clump-forming perennial with a mounded habit that is grown as much for its dark colored foliage as for its flowers.

Features huge, leathery, toothed new leaves that emerge purplish-red, but mature to brownish-green on top and purplish beneath.

Yellow-orange, daisy-like flowers appear in summer on thick, mostly leafless stems rising above the foliage typically to 2-3' tall.

Flower stalks and lower leaf surfaces of this cultivar are distinctively reddish-purple.
